

Catch that spirit! Clarion Review editor Penny Whittaker presents the paper's spirit jug to junior class officer Denis Kopilec, 16

Call it 'News-bury'

Geauga County. But it may have the biggest ideas.

Who copped the Great Lakes Athletic Conference football crown for the last three years? None other than Newbury High.

Who has the only newspaper in the North East Ohio Student Press Association that comes out every week? That's right, Newbury.

AND YET the Clarion Review has to have the tiniest

"We try to give the news while it's still new," says pretty Penny Whittaker, 17, the Clarion Review editor. And she's not just editorializing.

The other day a faculty member resigned. Clarion Review readers were the first in town to know. Superintendent - Principal George Groh released it to the school paper first.

"The staff has a good

Penny.

IN FACT, when the paper is "put to bed," Penny and feature writer John Lengel are still working. They have columns in the local Geauga Times-Leader.

You might say this staff doubles in Newbury as well as brass.

Penny is not only a fourear cheerleader, but basketball and track team mem-

It's the smallest school in city room in captivity—an 8x spirit. Everyone pitches in ber, too. And she has more eauga County. But it may 8 cubicle. spirit. Everyone pitches in ber, too. And she has more and does everything," adds than 60 trophies for horsemanship.

"说"。"这个

John became an item him-

REPORTER Linda Black-

And did we say spirit?

"We've got a Spirit Jug. Our paper gives it out each week to the class that has the most pep at a pep rally,' said Penny. The first week the freshmen challenged every other class to out-yell sified Cooperative Training Program, a vocational plan for those who wish to work half a day. And it has three recent graduates at Massachusetts Institute of Technology on full scholarship.

1928 on Center Road in the heart of the township. (Before that you went to Burton or Chardon). It has 278 students (all right, it sounds like 2,788 when they get yelling). And the team is the Black Knights.

And pipe that snappy self, when he broke his leg in football practice.

ington, yearbook staff member, is also president of the youth group of the Newbury Community Church. She has some good news sources, too. Her parents are both Newbury teachers.

NEWBURY HAS a Diver-

Newbury High was built in orange and black band uniform on band president and yearbook editor Kathy Kleve, 17. It cost $85, including that white shake hat. It may have taken the band four years, but they earned the $5,000 for the uniforms.

Football player John Lengel explains a few things to reporter Cheri Allen, 17.

Close harmony in the Jamie and Domain domain. Top, from left, Bob Pierce and Tom DeRigo. Seated, Dick Smith, Jamie Wunderle and Bill Laszlo.

Dig this domain

This may be the age of A leader, Jamie, who writes anxiety, but everything's harmonious with Jamie and the Domains.

They've got a five-part harmony going.

"Everybody sings," says Jamie Wunderle, 19, Midpark High senior and lead guitar player.

The others are Dick Smith, 18, of Midpark High, bass guitar player; Tom DeRigo, 17, drummer, Berea High; Bill Laszlo, 17, organ player, Padua Franciscan High, and Bob Pierce, 18, rhythm guitar player, who is out in the working world. Jamie and the Domains have two other newsy notes.

and arranges music ("Someone, Someone," "Sad Man," "She's Lying," "Love Her So.") And a girl manager, Madonna "Mad" Wunderle, 21, a St. Joseph Academy graduate now associated with Mod Management.

Jamie also teaches music at the Southwest YMCA. All girl classes, too!

There was one time though, that there wasn't much harmony.

"At the Hideaway in Tiffin we slept on a concrete floor. The last concert we gave we were so hoarse we could hardly sing," recalls Jamie.

In this 8x8 Clarion Review cubicle are John Lengel, Diana Powell, Joyce Immke, Penny Whittaker, Roger Lewis, Pete Ogint, Sandy Skinner, Kathy Bell and Linda Blackington.